To the Postal Regulatory Commission

We are not postal workers, nor do we have family members who work in the postal system. We are just Americans who believe in the Postal Service. We are writing in opposition to the proposed changes to the Postal System that would further degrade service and standards.

We are 69 and 65 years-old respectively. For all these years as American citizens we have been grateful recipients of the U.S.mail service. We have received a steady stream of cards and packages from family and friends that have lifted our spirits and allowed us to maintain connections despite our geographical distance from one another. We have also routinely received our voting ballots from the two states we have resided in , Hawaii and Washington, which has allowed us the convenience and security of voting from home. And then we entrusted these ballots to the mail carriers who made sure our ballots were delivered (on time) to the correct location and counted. What a privilege and blessing it has been to live in a country that has provided this service.

It is our understanding that N2121-1 will result in a continued slow down of the mail. This is uncalled for. It became obvious that the current Postmaster was installed to intentionally slow down the mail during the past presidential election, attempting to prevent some votes from being counted. It appears that this ploy is to be continued through the proposed 10-year-plan. We say a resounding "No" to that. If Congress has the will, they can propose legislation that will stabilize the postal service and allow it to continue to provide its great service to future generations. Do the right thing. Find a new Postmaster who genuinely cares about this service and its employees and who will develop a 10-year plan that reflects that care.

Sincerely,

Craig and Valinn Shull
